Arizona Central • Arizona Voters Will Decide These Ballot Measures in 2022

Submitted by: Brook Bender | Hualapai Senior Center | AZCentral.com

Arizona voters will decide these ballot measures in 2022

Ryan Randazzo | Arizona Republic | Sep. 19, 2022

Voters will have 10 ballot measures to decide, including Proposition 131, which would create the office of lieutenant governor in Arizona. Be informed for the November 2022 election. Arizona voters will have 10 ballot measures to decide this Election Day. Given the mountain of information to sort through with this many measures, The Arizona Republic has prepared a summary of each proposition, as well as the people who are supporting and opposing the proposals.

ELECTIONS

Proposition 128: Ballot initiatives

Legislature could divert funds from illegal/unconstitutional ballot measures

If approved, this constitutional amendment would allow lawmakers to change ballot measures that voters approve, or to divert funds from them, if either the Arizona or U.S. Supreme Court determines a measure is unconstitutional.

A no vote would keep the current law in place, which voters approved in 1998. The Voter Protection Act won that year with more than 52% of the vote and prohibited lawmakers from changing measures passed by voters. That law requires that any amendment or diversion of funds from a voter-approved initiative must further the purpose of the measure and also must get a 75% vote in both chambers of the Legislature.

Who wants it? Supporters who wrote ballot arguments for the measure include the Arizona Free Enterprise Club, Arizona Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Center for Arizona Policy and other business interests who contend the measure will make it possible to fix problems in voter-approved measures.

Who opposes it? Representatives from the League of Women Voters, One Arizona, Mormon Women for Ethical Government, Arizona Education Association, Living United for Change in Arizona and others wrote arguments against the measure, saying it would give lawmakers the ability to overturn the will of voters.

ELECTIONS

Proposition 129: Ballot initiatives

Limits future initiatives to a single issue described in the title

A yes vote on this measure supports a change to require voter initiatives to cover only one subject and would require a description of that subject in the title. Any portion of such an initiative not addressed in the title would be void, even if approved by voters.

Who wants it? Supporters who wrote ballot arguments for the measure include the Arizona Free Enterprise Club, Arizona Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Center for Arizona Policy and other business interests who contend the measure will ensure voters don't inadvertently approve something that is not described in a measure's title.

Who opposes it? Representatives from the League of Women Voters, One Arizona, Arizona Education Association, Living United for Change in Arizona and others wrote arguments against the measure, saying it limits the power of voters to enact their own laws.

ELECTIONS

Proposition 130: Property taxes

Allows exemptions for disabled veterans, widows and widowers

The measure would allow property tax exemptions for veterans with disabilities, widows, and widowers regardless of when they became Arizona residents, though people could only have one of those exemptions. This also would amend the Arizona Constitution to consolidate property-tax exemptions and remove rules for the amounts of exemptions, leaving that to the Legislature.

Who wants it? County assessors from Maricopa, Pima and Yuma counties and the Arizona Tax Research Association, among others, wrote arguments in support of the measure, saying it restores an exemption that was struck down by courts because of a flaw in the language.

Who opposes it? No arguments were filed against it with the Secretary of State's Office.

ELECTIONS

Proposition 131: Lieutenant governor

Creates a new political office to allow governor candidates to run as a ticket with a lieutenant governor, who would succeed them if they left office

This measure would create a new office of lieutenant governor to run as a ticket with candidates for governor. In the event the sitting governor dies, resigns or is removed from office, the lieutenant governor would assume the role. Currently, the secretary of state is second in line for the governorship in Arizona, and that person is not always of the same political party because the offices are elected separately.

Who wants it? State Sens. J.D. Mesnard, R-Chandler and Sean Bowie, D-Phoenix, League of Women Voters and state GOP Chairwoman Kelli Ward wrote in support of the measure, noting that prior to the current governor, it was more than 30 years since a governor completed a full eight years in office. They argue a successor from the same party from the same ticket provides continuity in government.

Who opposes it? No arguments were filed against it with the Secretary of State's Office.

ELECTIONS

Proposition 132: Raising taxes

Requires a supermajority of 60% voter approval to create tax law via ballot measures

The initiative would require any ballot measure that creates a tax to get 60% of the vote to become law.

Who wants it? Gov. Doug Ducey, representatives from the Goldwater Institute, Arizona Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Arizona Tax Research Association, Arizona Free Enterprise Club and others wrote arguments supporting it, saying that broad agreement should be required to raise taxes. They also note that lawmakers must have a two-thirds vote to approve new taxes.

Who opposes it? Representatives from the Arizona Center for Economic Progress, League of Women Voters, Arizona Education Association, Children's Action Alliance, Living United for Change in Arizona, One Arizona and others oppose the measure, saying it takes lawmaking power away from voters.

ELECTIONS Proposition 209: Debt collection

Shields more assets from debt collectors and limits interest rates

The measure would reduce the maximum interest rate on medical debt to 3% annually, from 10%. It would increase the assets exempt from debt collection. It would adjust exemptions for inflation starting in 2024 and would allow courts to reduce the earnings garnished in cases of extreme economic hardship.

Who wants it? Representatives from Healthcare Rising Arizona, which includes the Arizona Education Association, Arizona Faith Network, Living United for Change in Arizona, Wildfire and several other community groups, as well as Arizona Democratic Party Chairwoman Raquel Terán, multiple health care workers and others wrote arguments supporting the measure. They contend people should be able to protect more of their assets from medical debt collectors.

Who opposes it? The Goldwater Institute, Greater Phoenix Chamber of Commerce, Tucson Metro Chamber of Commerce, Arizona Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Arizona Free Enterprise Club and others wrote arguments opposing the measure, saying it will harm people by reducing their ability to access credit. They also contend that when lenders can't collect debt, they will raise rates on other customers.

ELECTIONS Proposition 211: Campaign finance

Increases the disclosure required for people donating to campaigns

The measure would require entities and people spending more than $50,000 on statewide political campaigns, or $25,000 on other campaigns, to disclose the original donor of any contributions greater than $5,000. Personal money and business income are exempted.

Who wants it? The measure is sponsored by an organization co-chaired by former Phoenix mayor and state Attorney General Terry Goddard, and several others wrote in support of it including the League of Women Voters of Arizona and Corporation Commissioner Sandra Kennedy, contending that voters have a right to know who is spending money to influence their decisions.

Who opposes it? The presidents of the Free Enterprise Club and Center for Arizona Policy wrote in opposition to the measure, saying it would allow for bullying of groups that wish to confidentially influence elections, and that groups should be able to spend on elections without fear of harassment.

ELECTIONS Proposition 308: Dreamer tuition

Arizona high school students, regardless of their immigration status, could pay in-state university tuition rates and access financial aid

The measure would make Arizona students who attended any public or private school, or home school equivalent, for two years, eligible for financial aid at state universities and in-state tuition rates, regardless of immigration status.

Who wants it? The Greater Phoenix Chamber of Commerce, Arizona Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Children's Action Alliance, Chicanos por la Causa, a group called Aliento that is run by undocumented youth and others wrote in support of the measure, contending that children who are undocumented should have the same educational opportunities as citizens.

Who opposes it? Former Arizona Senate President Russell Pearce and Arizona GOP Chairwoman Kelli Ward, and a few others, wrote in opposition to the measure, saying people who are in the country illegally should not receive in-state college tuition.

ELECTIONS Proposition 309: Voter ID

Requires more proof of identity to vote by mail and in person

The measure would require voters to write their birth date, government identification number and signature on an early ballot affidavit to vote by mail, rather than just simply putting their signatures on early ballot envelopes.

People voting in person already must provide either a photo identification or two items that show the name and address of the voter such as utility bills. The measure would change that to require photo identification for all in-person voters and, if the address on the identification didn't match voter rolls, then the two items such as utility bills would be required. The Department of Transportation would have to issue IDs for voting purposes for free.

Who wants it? Heritage Action for America, Sen. J.D. Mesnard, R-Chandler, who wrote the legislation for the measure, and several other Republican lawmakers and representatives from the Free Enterprise Club and Goldwater Institute wrote in support of the measure, saying it would help restore voter confidence in elections.

Who opposes it? Representatives from the League of Women Voters, One Arizona, Living United for Change in Arizona and others wrote in opposition to the measure, saying it will disqualify some people from voting if they don't have an unexpired photo identification or forget to return the affidavit with their mail-in ballot.

ELECTIONS Proposition 310: Fire district taxes

Bump in sales tax would fund rural fire protection

The measure would create a fire district safety fund using a one-tenth of 1% increase in state transaction-privilege taxes, commonly called sales taxes that would last from Jan. 1, 2023, to Dec. 31, 2042. The money would go to fire districts, which are funded differently than fire departments in major metro areas.

Who wants it? A host of firefighting groups from around the state wrote in support of the measure, saying that the additional funding is needed for the first responders who address vehicle accidents, fires and other emergencies in rural areas.

Who opposes it? Five opposition statements were filed against the measure, including from state GOP Chair Kelli Ward, Cindy Biggs, whose husband is U.S. Rep. Andy Biggs, R-Arizona, and a representative from the Free Enterprise Club, who argue the money is not needed and that some rural fire districts have acted irresponsibly.

Hualapai Tribal Utility Authority Seeking One New Board Member • Friday, October 28thSubmitted by: Kevin Davidson | Hualapai Planning DepartmentSeeking One New Board Member for the Hualapai Tribal Utility Authority (HTUA)

On September 24, 2014, the Hualapai Tribal Council adopted the Hualapai Tribal Utility Authority Governing Ordinance. This is a significant step toward self-determination in the realm of public utilities for the Hualapai Tribe.

Established as an institution of Tribal government, the five members of the Hualapai Tribal Utility Authority board are chosen by Council. As noted in Section 107.b.3, of the Ordinance, the HTUA Board is authorized to acquire, construct, operate, maintain, promote, and expand electric power service, and eventually water service, and sewage service at Grand Canyon West and on such other locations within the Hualapai Reservation and on other Tribal lands under the jurisdiction of the Hualapai Tribe as the Tribal Council may deem appropriate. The HTUA board is delegated full authority and responsibility for the management and operation of HTUA consistent with the Ordinance.

At this time, the Tribe is seeking one new candidate to apply for Board membership to maintain this important function of Tribal government.

- ♦ The position may be filled by a member of the Community who has sufficient education, experience, and sound judgment to learn basic utility business practices and procedures.
- ♦ The new board member will be appointed for a three-year term.
- ♦ No employee of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, employee of the HTUA or member of the Tribal Council shall be a member of the Board.

Please prepare a typed narrative offering your qualifications (resume) and general motivation to be a member of the Hualapai Tribal Utility Authority Board and what you hope to achieve while on the Board. Please bring or e-mail your letter of interest to the Tribal Office, 941 Hualapai Way, Peach Springs, Arizona, attention Christine Lee, by Friday, October 28, 2022, at 5:00 PM. Thank you for your thoughtful consideration of this offer and desire to enhance utility services on the Hualapai Reservation.

Ketchikan Daily News • KIC Hires New Administrator, Ruby Steele

KIC hires new administrator

Ketchikan Daily News Sep 7, 2022 Updated Sep 8, 2022

KETCHIKAN (KDN) —The Ketchikan Indian Community Tribal Council has hired Ruby Steele as the new KIC tribal administrator.

"Ruby has impressive experience leading strategic planning, partnership building, budget management, and marketing initiatives," KIC President Trixie Bennett said in KIC's Tuesday announcement of Steele's hire. "Our Tribal Council anticipates that her strong skill set will help us accelerate our key priorities and organizational development."

Steele, an enrolled member of the Hualapai Tribe, most recently has served as the chief executive officer of the Grand Canyon Resort Corp. since August 2020. Before that, she was director of cultural tourism with the Alaska Native Heritage Center in Anchorage from 2017 to 2020.

She graduated from the University of Alaska Anchorage, double majoring in marketing and business administration with an emphasis in management, and a minor in Alaska Native Business Management, according to the KIC announcement. Steele is in the process of completing an executive MBA.

According to the announcement, Steele will be working with KIC's current administration to "put additional accountability and compliance measures in place and to encourage continuous process improvement. In addition, she plans to enhance career development opportunities for current employees and look for additional training, education and development opportunities as we raise the next generation of Tribal leadership."

"Ruby's cultural leadership role with Alaska Native Heritage Center will also help guide us as we establish KIC's Cultural Heritage Camp at Naha," Bennett said in the announcement, "and her combination of optimism and business experience are valuable as we continue working on transforming our workplace culture."

Steele is anticipated to start as KIC tribal administrator on Sept. 26, according to the announcement. She will be replacing Randy Williams, who has served as tribal administrator since being appointed to the position in September 2021. The announcement noted that Williams provided "guidance and stability for the organization during a time of leadership transition."

"The KIC Tribal Council appreciates the dedication of Randy Williams and the other KIC employees and leaders who stepped up during this pivotal transition," states the announcement.

In addition to the above-listed experience, Steele served as transportation program manager for the Hualapai Tribe in Peach Springs, Arizona, in 2015-16, and as a member of the Hualapai Tribal Council from 2008 through 2012, according to her LinkedIn listing.

The Hualapai: Another Colorado basin tribe without water rights

Native American tribes in the Colorado River basin have inherent rights to the water, but the amount and access for a dozen tribes hasn't been fully resolved for decades

PEACH SPRINGS, Ariz. — Garnett Querta slips on his work gloves as he shifts the big rig he's driving into park. Within seconds, he unrolls a fire hose and opens a hydrant, sending water flowing into one of the plastic tanks on the truck's flat bed.

His timer is set for 5 minutes, 20 seconds — when the tank will be full and he'll turn to the second one. The water pulled from the ground here will be piped dozens of miles across rugged landscape to serve the roughly 700,000 tourists a year who visit the Grand Canyon on the Hualapai reservation in northwestern Arizona — an operation that is the tribe's main source of revenue. dering more than 100 miles of Hualapai land in the canyon, the tribe can't draw from it. Native American tribes in the Colorado River basin have inherent rights to the water, but the amount and access for a dozen tribes hasn't been fully resolved, not for decades.

The 1922 Colorado River Compact that divided the water among states didn't include a share for tribes. Now that the river is shrinking because of overuse, drought and human-caused climate change, tribes want the federal government to ensure their interests are protected. A water settlement pending in Congress would give the Hualapai Tribe the right to draw river water, plus $180 million to pipe it to tribal communities and the main tourist center at Grand Canyon West.

"It was the best of a bad deal," said Phil Wisely, the tribe's public services director. "And the thing is, I don't think we could get a better deal, especially now."

The Colorado River can no longer meet the needs of the 40 million people and $15 billion agriculture industry that depend on it. The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation recently announced that Arizona, Nevada and Mexico would see deeper cuts to their water supply in 2023. The agency also is asking seven Western states to find a way to conserve more.

Long-standing rights

The 29 tribes in the Colorado River basin are in fact among the river's most senior water rights holders, a determination often tied to the date the federal government established a reservation. Tribal water rights — once they're fully resolved — could add up to about one-quarter of the river's historic flow, according to the Water & Tribes Initiative.

Unlike other water users, tribes don't lose access to water when they don't use it. A 1908 U.S. Supreme Court decision known as the Winters Doctrine says tribes have the right to enough water to establish a permanent homeland. Often, tribes give up potentially huge water claims in exchange for an assured supply and federal funding to deliver it. To the northeast of Hualapai, the Ute Indian Tribe has Colorado River tributaries flowing on its reservation east of Salt Lake City.

While the tribe has secured some rights, not everyone agrees on how much more it should receive, delaying a settlement for decades. Ute Indian Tribe leaders say they're tired of reiterating that the federal government needs to protect tribal interests, a duty laid out in treaties and other acts. "Until you start to deal with the inequities or the injustice, you can never really have any momentum going forward," said Shaun Chapoose, chairman of the Ute Business Committee.

"You're not resolving that. And they are in a position to do that, they are the federal government." The situation of both the Hualapai and Ute Indian Tribe highlights the frustration of Native American leaders across the basin that although their rights may not be quantified, they are real.

Other tribes that have secured water rights have pitched in to help their neighbors amid the prolonged drought by conserving water in key reservoirs along the Colorado River. Some lease or exchange water, and use it to sustain the environment, sometimes creating revenue for themselves.

But Jay Weiner, who represents tribes in water settlements, said it would be unjust to continue to rely heavily on tribes when they haven't had access to the water as long as states in the basin. "The tribes have already front-loaded and sacrificed by the fact that the basin has been able to use huge amounts of water that tribes have rights to over the past 100 years," Weiner said.

In a statement to The Associated Press, the Interior Department did not say how tribal water rights, which are federal rights, would be protected as the river's flow decreases. It said it is working with tribes that are affected by drought.

Hauling water on Hualapai Land

Querta's job is a grind but he's well-suited for it — analytical, quick and goal-oriented. He takes meticulous notes on water levels and quality as he fills the tanks that ensure tourists at Grand Canyon West have water. The truck takes a beating on the gravel and dirt road on multiple round trips of more than 30 miles most days. The side mirrors and back windows that rattled loose are held together by red duct tape. Querta keeps tools on hand for minor repairs. Major ones or illness can put him out of commission.

He was out for two weeks because of COVID-19 last year and had no replacement. "I didn't mind because I didn't want anybody to mess up my truck or my tanks," said Querta. "I take care of this truck like it's mine."

Once he's filled the tanks on the truck bed, the water is sent through a pipeline from just outside of Peach Springs to Grand Canyon West. The tourist center is crucial. Revenue from it funds tribal programs for the elderly, public works, the cultural center, scholarships and other social services. The main attraction is the Grand Canyon Skywalk — a horseshoe-shaped glass bridge that gives tourists a view of the Colorado River 4,000 feet below. There is not a drop to spare at Grand Canyon West. A restaurant that overlooks the Grand Canyon has waterless urinals in the restrooms and faucets with sensors. Customers are served bottled water and food in disposable containers with plastic utensils, cutting out most of dish washing.

Even if the Hualapai eventually get water from the Colorado River, those practices will stay in place, said operations manager Alvaro Cobia-Ruesga. "We see what's going on, we have to conserve water for our future," he said.

The tribe has long planned to expand Grand Canyon West with a store, fire and police station, housing and elementary school to serve tribal members who ride a shuttle up to five hours round trip daily from Peach Springs and surrounding communities to their jobs there.

But without a secure source of water for Grand Canyon West, it won't happen, said tribal Chairman Damon Clarke. Under the settlement pending in Congress, the tribe would be responsible for building out the infrastructure to deliver water. "One of the biggest things with our settlement is hope for the future and getting this not for us at this time but for the generations ahead," Clarke said.

Part of the reason the Hualapai Tribe did not prioritize discussions on water rights long ago is because tribal members believed that water came with their land, said Rory Majenty, board chairman of the Grand Canyon Resort Corp. that oversees Grand Canyon West. "We took things for granted," he said. "Like you knew you were going to eat, you knew the sun was going to come up. Tomorrow is another day."

The settlement has its critics, including Hualapai rancher Clay Bravo. He said the tribe should wait, negotiate a better deal and develop groundwater resources at the same time. He's not satisfied with a lower priority water right that he equates to crumbs, given the Hualapai Tribe has been on the land since time immemorial.

"How can we run a race and come in first and get the fourth-place trophy?" Bravo said, leaning against a pickup truck on a rocky road overlooking an old water. Even with secure water rights, tribes can't always fully put the water to use because they lack infrastructure. A pipeline eventually will reach the southwestern portion of the Jicarilla Apache Nation in New Mexico through another tribe's water settlement to boost economic development in the region. Jicarilla Apache has leased water it already has access to for energy production, recreation and conservation, and to benefit threatened and endangered fish. Tribes in the Phoenix area have leased water to nearby cities.

The Colorado River Indian Tribes, whose reservation sits along the river bordering Arizona and California, doesn't have the legal authority to lease its water, though a bill is pending in Congress to authorize it. "It's our sovereignty and beneficial rights of our water — the full beneficial rights of our water," said tribal Chairwoman Amelia Flores. "We want to lease, we don't want to sell our water, and that's the difference."

What is just?

The Ute Indian Tribe wants that same ability. The tribe asserts rights to 550,000 acre-feet. (An acre-foot is enough water to serve two to three U.S. households annually). A settlement negotiated 30 years ago recognizes about half of that.

"Utah's position is that's the number we're comfortable with, and we think that does more than enough to satisfy the claims of the Utes," said Utah deputy state engineer Jared Manning.

But the tribe hasn't ratified the settlement. The Utes have sued in federal court over access to water. A judge ruled in one case last year that the tribe waited too long to bring its claims against the federal government and Utah.

Daniel McCool, professor emeritus at the University of Utah, said the larger question is whether the Ute Indian Tribe has been treated justly and whether funding for water diversions have been on par with non-Native American interests.

"There's a reason why the tribe doesn't have much water and why almost all the water in the region is being used by white people," said McCool, who studies tribal water rights. "Look at who got the money, the Central Utah Project. Who got the water? Ask yourself that and ask, 'does this look fair to you?'"

It's a question tribal members have posed for decades, whether the first inhabitants of what's now the U.S. should have anything but the oldest, most secure water rights. Inevitably, others will lose water they've grown accustomed to using as tribes gain access to it.

"People have been taking our water. Are they taking it legally or illegally?" Majenty said.

"The argument from the other side is it's capitalism, free enterprise. That's where they got us. Ownership is where it's at. Until you have a piece of paper, it's not yours."

On behalf of the Buck-N-Doe 4-H Club, I want to thank everyone that supported our club fundraisers and encouraged the members with their projects this past year and during the fair. We have twenty-five (25) current members and of those members twenty (20) were enrolled in small stock or livestock events. Members were able to work with Mr. Denetclaw on how to clip their steer and sheep for fair and use products provided by the FRTEP office. At this time members were made aware of the Intertribal Agriculture Council Food for Families Program that would be offering competitive 2022 Add-On Livestock Premiums and Processing Coupons for members that would be completing their 4-H year at the local county fair. Members that received 2022 Add-On Livestock Premiums were: Secret Benson, Talicyn Lewis, Teagin Lewis, Carlina Ng, Vince Querta, Kilian Siyuja, Josiah Uqualla and Michael Uqualla. Members that received the 2022 Processing Coupon were: Lawrence Bravo, Nina Montana; Malachi Uqualla and Marklen Walema. These awards were an added bonus for the members and especially for buyers during the auction that purchased the Market Beef with the Processing Coupon!

Our fair week started on 9/14/22, a super busy day for the 4hers and their families. This is when all our small stock, livestock and equipment were hauled to the fairgrounds in Kingman, Arizona. All the members set up their stall areas and sites located at the fairgrounds and barn area by the arena. Official Fair weights were done that night starting at 7pm. We had one steer that was sifted before the weight check, but all other livestock and small stock were weighed in. Livestock: Market Steers - 4 of the 5 made minimum weight of 950 pounds, with one prospect under 950; Market Swine – 5 of the 8 met minimum weight of 215 pounds, with 3 under min. weight and in prospect class; Market Lamb – All four (4) lambs met weight limit of 100 pounds or higher; Small Stock- Rabbit- met minimum 8# limit. Official weights are important because these weights will determine if your project will be able to go to auction. For those not meeting the minimum weight limits, these members can do the showmanship events but will now have to find a private buyer after the auction is over.

Our first fair event started on Thursday, 9/15/2022 with our Market Swine Showmanship event. This event focuses on the members and how well they show their livestock. First up were Senior members: Anita (Lola) Montana, Carlina Ng and Kilian Siyuja. This was an exciting event with Carlina Ng winning the Reserve Champion Showmanship buckle and Brooke Forsee winning the Grand Champion Showman buckle. In the Junior (8-11 year olds) Showmanship event members: Josiah Uqualla, Michael Uqualla, Secret Benson, Talicyn Lewis and Connor O'Brien did a great job as some were first year members. Talicyn Lewis made it to the call back round and received a Blue ribbon, with Brooklyn Jarquin winning Grand Champion and Zoey Davidson winning Reserve Champion.

After showmanship, the focus is now on the livestock and is called Market Conformation with classes broken down by weight. We purchased our market pigs from Ron Garrigan and they are Yorkshire X, sometimes called Blue Butts. In the Lightweight Market Swine class: Carlina Ng's York X received a 3rd Blue; Medium weight class: Josiah Uqualla's York X received 2nd RED, Michael Uqualla's York X received a 2nd WHITE and Kilian Siyuja's York X received a 3rd WHITE; Heavy weight class: Talicyn Lewis's York X received a 2nd White. The judge called our pigs market ready, but on the plainer side.

While this was the first fair event of the day (9/15/22). Our actual day started much earlier, with most of the members up early that morning feeding/watering and cleaning up the stall/pen areas before the fair actually opened each day at 10AM. Our club was responsible for the 4-H/FFA Exhibit Hall from 10AM to NOON that morning, so families took turns manning the area. We also take part in Herdsmanship during the FAIR and are judged for always having member(s) available at our livestock exhibits from 10AM to 7PM Thursday & Friday and 10AM to 5PM on Saturday, as well as other arena assignments given to our club during the fair.

Friday events started early with our Small Animal Showmanship and Market Classes beginning at 10AM. Our club had two (2) members: Cherish Osife-Manakaja (Red Ribbon) and Caitlin O'Brien (Blue Ribbon) in the Rabbit Showmanship events. This is their first year in this project and they did really well, Cherish showed in Junior class and Caitlin in the Intermediate class. Caitlin's market rabbit also received a 12th Blue Ribbon in Market Conformation and Blue ribbon in Rabbit Breed Conformation class for New Zealand (Broken). Gracie Uqualla (Cactus Critter's 4-H Club) received a Blue ribbon for showmanship and 1st Blue in Market Conformation. She also received Best of Breed for her New Zealand (White) and Blue Ribbon for her Holland Lop.

Our next event on Friday (9/16/22) started at 4PM with Sheep Showmanship beginning with our Senior member, Lena Montana. She received a Red ribbon, Grand Champion went to Gracie Forsee and Reserve Champion was Elmer Hambrick. In the Junior Showmanship class: Jenny Bravo won the Jr. Reserve Champion Buckle (her 1st year in this project) and Lucus Mc Millan won the Grand Champion buckle. Also, Alyssa Montana and Sheltiel Montana both received Red Ribbons. They all did an excellent job showing and learning from the judge on how to work with their lambs. I think we were overjoyed that Jenny was able to take that advice and won that buckle-more than a few tears of joy shed LOL After the showmanship, conformation started with the Lightweight lambs: Alyssa's lamb was placed as 2nd White and Shealtiel's lamb was placed as 3rd White; Medium Weight Lambs: Jenny's was placed as 4th Red and Lena's placed 2nd Red. Elmer Hambrick had 1st place lambs in all weight classes and won both Grand & Reserve Champion Market Lamb awards. I want to thank Kristy McReynolds (for taking the time to help shear and prep these lambs for showmanship) & to Heelin Munoz for hauling the trailer (for these lambs to her house) the weekend prior to the Fair. That Saturday (9/10/22) was also our Fairgrounds clean-up day and counted as a County event. Attending a county event is a requirement for members to attend in order to show at the Fair, so it was a busy Saturday for all of us.

The last event of the day was our Beef Show and Conformation events that started at 7pm with our Senior Beef Showman: Malachi Uqualla, who received a well-deserved Blue Ribbon. The Grand Champion was Brooke Forsee and Reserve Champion Keegan Barker; In the Intermediate Class: Teagin Lewis and Marklen Walema, both first year showman received Red Ribbons, with Faith Campa winning Grand Champion and Sahirah Fenster winning Reserve Champion. In the Junior Class: Vince Querta won a Blue Ribbon as a 1st year Showman, with Bentley Jarquin winning Grand Champion and Lucas McMillan winning Reserve Champion. Market Beef Conformation began with the Lightweight class: Marklen Walema- 1st Red, Teagin Lewis- 2nd Red and Vince Querta- 3rd Red; Medium Weight Class: Malachi Uqualla – 2nd Red. There were no Heavy Weight steers from our club. The Grand Champion Market Steer went to Faith Campa's Medium Wt. steer and Reserve Champion went to Sahara Fensterbush's

The Livestock Judge this year was Mesa Koots from Fort Smith, Arkansas, graduate of the University of Arkansas and currently obtaining her Master's Degree in Sustainable Livestock Systems.

Saturday, 9/17/22, was another busy day. Starting with the Small Animal Conformation classes at 10AM. Our Rabbit member: Caitlin O'Brien showed her Broken New Zealand and won a Blue ribbon. Submitted by: Shanna Salazar | Hualapai Tribal Administration

HUALAPAI ARTIST WANTED

Purpose

This year, the Hualapai Tribe was successful at attaining legislation for a Hualapai Special License Plate. With every purchase of a Hualapai Special License Plate, the Hualapai Tribe will receive $17 per license plate sold by ADOT.

Guidelines

Please submit your proposed designs to Hualapai Tribal Administration (Christine Lee, Addie Crozier, or Shanna Salazar), with your contact info.

Designs are limited to: 11.73" by 5.97" parameter, avoid THIN lines, designs must include important aspects of Hualapai, be mindful that it must be seen from 10-feet away, and designs should not include too much color (further details on Page 2). All designs must be submitted no later than Friday, October 7, 2022 by 5 pm.

Selections

Hualapai Tribal Council will be voting anonymously to make a final selection to submit to ADOT. All designs must be approved by ADOT. Selections will be announced once the Tribe receives confirmation from ADOT (which could take up to 6-months). All proposed designs will become property of the Hualapai Tribe.

EXAMPLES

Navajo Nation

San Carlos Apache Tribe

White Mountain Apache Tribe

STANDARD LICENSE PLATE TEMPLATE

Designing a plate requires some special consideration. Even though it is a blank canvas, you should keep in mind that parts will be covered with decals, letters, numbers and holes.

The State name takes up an area measuring a minimum of .75" in height and up to 6" long. It will be in "Sans Serif" font.

Year box may have a solid background or be blank, but remains the same size, and will be covered by tags.

The year box is 1.3" wide and 1.1" high. It measures .2632" from right edge of plate and .3912" from top edge of plate.

License Plate Dimensions — 12" x 6" Artwork Dimensions — 11.73" x 5.97"

ARTWORK + BLEED AREA

ARTWORK AREA

Your art can fill the entire 11.73" x 5.97" area.

ALPHA - NUMERIC AREA

A 9.5" x 3" area containing alpha/numerics will be centered. If a logo or graphic is submitted, it is a logo or graphic is submitted, an area approximately 2.75" x 2.75" centered and to the left will only allow 6 alpha/numerics set to the right. Logo or graphics must not interfere with legibility of the alpha/numerics. Bigger logos can be used, but it may result in less Alpha/Numerics, or may be covered over in the design process.

DECALS

Artwork is permitted within the decal areas, however it will be covered.

STATE YOUR PLATE

State Your Plate is a typical template to help you in designing your new specialty license plate.

DESIGN GUIDELINES

GRAPHICS

Avoid Thin Lines
Minimum line thickness is .1132" or 0.031".

REMEMBER YOUR MEDIUM.
Think simple bold graphics or images. All license plates are printed on reflective sheeting that is covered with tiny glass reflective beads. This means that too many colors will make it hard to see.

SIZE AND PROXIMITY.
License plates are small canvases viewed from a distance. Consider what can be seen from 10 feet away. Indicate details may be lost.

COLOR

PROCESS NOT PANTONE.
All designs should be set up in CMYK (Cyan, Magenta, Yellow, and Black) process colors. This will be a digital print on a reflective surface.

BE CAUTIOUS OF TINT.
The method used in printing license plates may cause tints over 75% to fill in, and tints under 5% to not appear.

BE CAUTIOUS OF TOO MUCH SATURATION.
Due to excessive heat generated when printing designs with large color fill areas, the design should have a limited amount of color saturation.

REMEMBER YOUR NUMBERS.
Unless otherwise specified, we will make them the color that can be viewed best from a distance. Usually dark plates go White, and lighter plates go Black, but there are other variations that can be discussed.

Keep in mind, both holes will be punched out when the plate goes into production. They measure approximately .3125" in diameter. The center measures .3312" from top or bottom of plate, and 2.2631" from left or right edge of plate.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE*September 23, 2022

Arizona enters pre-statehood era with draconian abortion law

PHOENIX – Representatives Athena Salman and Melody Hernandez released the following statements Friday afternoon after a Pima County Superior Court Judge lifted an injunction on a draconian territorial-era near total ban on all abortions in Arizona, even in cases of rape and incest.

Salman has led the House Democratic caucus fight against abortion restrictions for the past six years, introducing legislation to repeal the territorial-era ban in multiple sessions.

"When someone decides to have an abortion, it should be safe, affordable, and free from punishment and judgement. This ruling does the opposite," Representative Salman said. "By rolling back the clock almost 160 years the radical right has taken Arizona backwards. Any pregnant person and their doctors will live under threat of prosecution for seeking or providing any medical care that results in an early termination of a pregnancy. This violates what the vast majority of Arizonans want. For years I have introduced legislation to repeal this antiquated law, only to have the bill shelved by the extremists controlling the legislature. We deserve better."

Representative Hernandez has shared her abortion story in legislative testimony against restrictions on reproductive healthcare. As a paramedic, she has also spent time over the past two weeks volunteering with an abortion provider assisting in what may be some of the last legal abortions in Arizona for the immediate future.

"Criminalizing abortion puts the life and freedom of every pregnant person at risk," Hernandez said. "But we know who this ruling will impact most severely -- people of color, underserved communities and those who aren't wealthy. Volunteering to help women seeking abortions this week, I saw people from all different age groups, teens up to early 50s, all backgrounds, people who had not easily made this intimate and deeply personal decision. When the procedures were over, I saw relief, like a weight lifted and they had their life back. Criminalizing healthcare is just wrong, and Arizona will not stand for it."

Hualapai Days 2022 Doll Making & Frybread Contest

DOLL MAKING

On Saturday September 17, 2022 CFCC hosted BrokenSky Creations doll making session. Each participant purchased a eight inch blank doll as well as having all the necessary fabrics and supplies provided. Participants had the opportunity to learn one technique of sewing hair onto the head of the doll and pattern and design the clothing. All clothes were hand sewn. For some participants this was the first time ever working with a needle and thread and learning something new. The results were beautiful! A hamburger, potato and green chili stew along with fresh tortillas was enjoyed by the doll makers. Each doll will be cherished by its designer.

Frybread Contest

The contest was held on Tuesday September 20, 2022 with five contestants. Each contestant in their interview shared, how frybread is spoken in their language, who taught them and who they taught how to make frybread. What they knew about the history of frybread and what was the largest amount of frybread they've made and what the occasion was. The answers were unique and insightful showing the vibrancy of our tribal families and cultures.

The winners of the contest were, 3rd place Renfro Cook, 2nd place Yvette Henson and 1st Place Tanaya Marshall. Each contestant received a gift basket of food items the winners received a total of $275 in cash and a trophy which was a kitchen utensil holder with utensils engraved with the event name and position own. After the contest a stew dinner with frybread from the contestants was enjoyed by all those who spectated the contest. As it was not a easy job tasting the frybread, a thank you to our judges, tribal elder Elvira Otten, GCRC Human Resources Training and Development Specialist Alex Krasinski and Hualapai Tribal Council Member Earlene Havatone.

Blessings and thank you to all the participants, families and community members who attended the events hosted and sponsored by the CFCC Family.

HOUSING ASSISTANCE APPLICATION

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

This application is for the Housing Improvement Program (HIP) of the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA).

The HIP is a grant program that addresses the housing needs of those Indians who cannot qualify for housing assistance from any other source. It involves the repair and renovation of existing housing or the construction of a new unit. Individual Federally-recognized Indian tribe's participation is mandatory and their direct administration of the HIP is encouraged. The selection of eligible families or individuals for HIP services is done through a screening process by assigning points to specific ranking factors documented in the application.

Individuals wishing to apply for HIP assistance must complete this application and submit it to either their local BIA Agency office or designated Tribal HIP office, if operated under P.L. 93-638 contract or P.L. 103-413 Self-Governance compact.

1. The authority for solicitation of the information is 25 U. S. C. 13 and the Bureau of Indian Affairs HIP regulation at 25 CFR Part 256.
2. The information collected will be used to determine an applicant's eligibility and to set priority ranking for assistance under the HIP regulations.
3. The disclosure of this information is voluntary. Failure to provide the information required to support the verification process will result in the denial of the application.
